THE WEATHER.

The daily record of the thermometer in this city for yesterday, as reported by C. W. Brandon, was: 7 a. m., 30 degrees above; 12 m., 47 degrees above; 4 p. m., 43 degrees above; 8 p. m., 40 degrees above.

ABOUT THE CITY.

Hon. Chas. M. Crutchfield came over from Missoula last night.

D. R. Gray, agent of the Southern Pacific Railway company, is at the Montana.

Not an arrest was made yesterday by the police. The hobos are behaving themselves pretty well these days.

Mrs. B. McGinley and children, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Howard, departed yesterday for Butte, where they will spend the week visiting relatives and friends.

The Juvenile Temple of the I. O. G. T. will give an entertainment and social for the benefit of their lodge, in the Mattie hall, on Friday evening next at 8 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend.

L. O. Leonard has returned to this city after an extended visit to his old home in the East. He will take up his residence here again, though he has not fully decided yet what business he will engage in. Mrs. Leonard will return next week, and they will take apartments at the Montana.

Miss Anna Maloy, who has been teaching in the seventh grade of the public school, has left for her old home in Shulesburg, Wis. Miss Maloy was one of the most popular young ladies in this city. She was an efficient and successful teacher and many people regret her departure from these parts.

A number of the members and adherents of the Presbyterian church of this city assembled at the residence of Rev. William Clyde last evening and had a merry time of it. The meeting was termed a "point social," every person who was present brought a pound of something for the household of the good parson. In music, speeches and social chat the evening was spent most pleasantly.

The next lecture of the Epworth league course will be delivered in the M. E. church next Tuesday evening by Rev. A. D. Raleigh, D. D. of Missoula. His theme will be, "The Christian as an American Laborer. What Shall We Do With Him?" Dr. Raleigh delivered an address on this subject recently to a large audience in his own church at Missoula. His remarks were cordially endorsed by the labor organizations of that city, who passed complimentary resolutions and requested the repetition of the address in the opera house last Sunday evening.

The Hook and Ladder company held a business meeting last night at the fire hall. The programmes are out for the company's fourth annual ball which will be given at Evans' opera house, Monday evening, April 18. Very neat invitations are being sent out. The cards are embellished with a handsome emblem on the corner with raised gilt border. In the center of the emblem is the picture of trumpets, ladders, axes, and firemen's hats. It is a very unique and handsome piece of work. The members of the fire company are working hard to make this one of the best dancing assemblies ever held in this city.

At the Montana: William D. Jess, Omaha; D. T. Hoskett, Chicago; D. R. Gray, Southern Pacific company; R. H. Crangle, St. Paul; John Marshall, Jr., San Francisco; H. G. Atwood, West Superior; J. E. Oppenheimer, Butte; George Grennell, Butte; J. O. Goss, Jr., Butte; Henry Jonas, Butte; W. C. Harvey, Helena; T. C. Lawler, M. D., Helena; R. S. Conaghan, Chicago; Wells Graham, Chicago; T. E. Butler, Butte; E. C. Atwater, Helena; A. R. Cooman, Livingston; J. A. Allen, New York; William Otto, Chicago; S. H. Greenwood, St. Louis; J. Elkinton, Chicago; E. H. Block, New York; Charles M. Crutchfield, Missoula.

BONDS AND POLITICS

Talk of the Town Heard on the Streets Yesterday.

M'CAFFERY AND HIS MEN

The Nondescript Party Place D. Tietjen at the Head of the Forlorn Hope—All Around the Ring.

The vacancy at the head of the McCaffery ticket was filled last night by the nomination of D. Tietjen, the cigar manufacturer. Commander McCaffery and his followers will endeavor to elect Mr. Tietjen mayor of this city next Monday. Tietjen is a good business man and a good citizen, but under the circumstances he stands a mighty small show of being elected mayor, as the candidate of the nondescript party which has placed him in nomination. It could not be learned last night whether or not Tietjen had consented to enter the contest; from the fact that the central committee which is helping him McCaffery to straighten out the affairs of this city, met last night in Attorney English's office and placed Tietjen in nomination for mayor, it is probable that they had his consent. But they put Waterbury at the head of their ticket without any warrant from that gentleman and it is possible they may have done so in the case of Tietjen.

No one seems to know what this party led by McCaffery should be called. It started out with the name of the "labor-citizens" party. But the labor leaders met and very promptly disowned any connection with the concern. They plainly told the public that the labor organizations of this city were not in politics. The only warrant that one can find for the word "labor" is that it will require great labor to elect the candidates. And the citizens, as a general thing, will have nothing to do with the party. A man can go up and down Main street on both sides and he cannot find six business men who will acknowledge that they are supporters of this new party. In general the level-headed business men of the city are opposed to this strange party's plans. The truth would suffer no violence if the party was to be called the disgruntled republican party. While it is true the majority of the reputable republicans of this city are not sympathizers with the people who are following the lead of McCaffery, it cannot be denied that the leaders of the party, the men who are doing all the work, making all the plans, naming all the candidates, rustling all the cash, are republicans. The public is aware of this by reading the names of these men in the newspapers.

The McCaffery party desired a compromise last night. Commander McCaffery offered to make a bargain with the democrats but the democrats are not seeking a compromise; they have an invincible ticket in the field; they propose to elect every man of them.

There has been talk on the street to the effect that Dan Dwyer had refused to run for mayor. There is no truth in the story. Mr. Dwyer is in the race; and the citizens propose to elect him. If signs go for anything he will receive the largest majority ever obtained by any candidate for the office.

The alarm over the threatened epidemic of scarlet fever having subsided, the children who have been away from school on that account are returning and the school rooms are once more crowded. This brings emphatically before the board of education the question of additional school room. Two grades are still on half-day sessions and will probably remain so for the remainder of the present school year.

This school district is at present renting one room at an expense of $25 per month. It is not likely that any attempt will be made to secure additional room this term, and the work will be carried on as well as possible under the present cramped conditions.

The proposed issue of bonds, upon which the electors of this district will vote, April 16, will meet the demands of the district for several years. Next September at least three new rooms will be required for the lower grades, and two or three for the upper grades. To supply these additional rooms and to properly equip them, will require about $5,000. This estimate includes the repairs and changes which must be made in the present buildings.

The necessity of these new buildings no one who is at all familiar with the situation will deny. Anaconda has a city school system which will compare favorably with that of any other western city. The work done in our schools is thorough and the general spirit which prevails in all departments is one of earnestness.

Other Montana cities have been more liberal in the matter of school buildings than Anaconda. Missoula, Bozeman, Great Falls and Helena have all within the past year, erected commodious modern school buildings. In no one of these cities has there been the substantial growth in the past two years that Anaconda has seen. This city should not lose its reputation as a good school town. Such a reputation is too desirable to forfeit. Every dollar expended in public school property enhances the value of every foot of real estate in the district. This subject deserves the consideration of every property owner in the district. The bonds will be unanimously voted if the needs of the schools are considered.

At the last meeting of the Deer Lodge Trades and Labor assembly a resolution was adopted requesting all business men in this county to withdraw their patronage from the Chinese.

Card of Thanks.

Charles Stock and Mrs. P. H. Kelly, brother and sister of Mrs. Joseph Kempf, hereby extend their heartfelt thanks to the neighbors who so kindly and generously aided their sister in her last sickness. It is difficult to express their feelings in this regard, but in view of her being almost a stranger, the care taken of her could not have been better if she were with her own family. Neglecting their business and families to care for her, without desiring to make any distinction for all who were so kind to her, we wish, however, to express our sincere thanks to P. W. Schmidt and John Wagener.

C. STOCK.

The members of the democratic city central committee are requested to meet in B. F. Mahan's office on First street to-night at 8 o'clock. J. M. Kennedy, chairman.

A POSSIBLE REGENT.

The Kaiser's Brother, Who May be Called on to Rule Germany.

Paris corr. New York Herald.

Although the talk has been all the week about Germany, it is necessary to say a few words to-day about a young man who has been playing a most important part during the exciting week which has just ended.

This young man is Prince Henry, brother to the emperor, upon whom rests a great responsibility and who some day may be called upon to exercise the regency in Germany, pending the attaining of his majority by one of his nephews, born in 1882.

Prince Henry is just 30 years old. He is bigger and stronger than his brother. He has a swarthy complexion and his white teeth show beneath a blonde mustache. He is more amiable than his imperial brother.

Looking at him for the first time, one would exclaim, "what a fine fellow!" In truth, he is always jolly and there is always a gracious reply from his lips.

I saw him for the first time at San Remo during the illness of poor Frederick. In receiving me he spoke so tenderly of his parents and was so full of gratitude for those who sympathized with him that his words will never be forgotten.

Prince Henry has always been a favorite of his mother, and has always been on excellent terms with his sister, the hereditary Princess of Saxe-Meiningen. In these two points he does not resemble his brother.

I believe he has helped a good deal in preventing scandal after the death of his father. He is also a good husband, living at Kiel, where his family resides. There he was always seen with his wife, the Princess Irene, his daughter, and also the Grand Duke of Hesse, who has just died. He points and is a musician.

He looks well and is not like the little emperor. I don't think he likes the military service. He was brought up in the navy and lived in the midst of sailors. He quite comprehends the horrors of war. He is liberal in his views and has been a good deal with his mother.

He has faults, as everybody has, but I do not believe that any of the princes in Europe have better qualities than he has. He is a better man than his father was. He has no prejudices against France. With him peace would be almost certain, the only good that the princes of Europe can bestow upon their people.

These are good things to say of him, for Prince Henry is being called upon to play more and more an important role in the government of Prussia.

A MIRROR IN A GLOVE.

The Latest Form of Vanity Developed in Victoria's Realm.

From the Pall Mall Budget.

Without merely desiring to remind herself of her good looks, a woman has herself of as much looking glass as she can see her face in. In the street, at a ball, at a theater, in the shops, all sorts of little disarrangements may occur, and to set them right a mirror is an absolute necessity. This isn't a new discovery. The want is one that really has been long felt, and some clumsy attempts have been made to meet it.

But the very handiest form of portable mirrors is the "mirror glove." A little flap is buttoned up into the palm of one glove. When it is let down a small circular mirror is disclosed. The advantage of this arrangement is that one can look at herself without appearing to do so. To an ordinary observer you are looking at the mirror, and not at the woman's habit to do when they are rummaging. In the remote possibility of a woman wearing these gloves simply out of vanity to hold the mirror up to nature—or art, as it may happen to be—the opportunity of being able to do it without the purpose of being detected is of great importance, for even vain women are usually so vain as to wish to be thought without vanity.

In the tombs of the Pharaohs have been found very curious representations of the human eye in gold. Some of them are left eyes and others right eyes. They are beautifully executed, the brows, lids and pupils being carved out of little rectangular pieces of metal.

Probably the only monument to Columbus in the United States is in Baltimore, and was erected 10 years ago. It stands on the grounds of the Samuel R. Brady Orphan asylum. A singular feature of its inscription is that the immortal egg breaker was characterized as "Chris. Columbus."

Recently David Whipple chopped three dormant blacksnakes out of a maple log at his sugar camp in Jackson township, Pa. He placed them in a kettle and hung the kettle over the fire, and in a few minutes the snakes began to crawl around in the kettle as though summer had come.

Andrew Mapes, of Dutch Mountain, Pa., had his axe dulled by a hard substance in the trunk of an oak tree one day this month. He cut out a few more chips and found a skeleton of a coon in the hollow. While chopping the rest of the tree into staves Mr. Mapes came across the skeletons of two more coons.
